The Lunchies Insert takes a look at one of Main Campus' most interesting cultures: food. Lunch trucks are privy to Temple's campus and student life, and students turn to the trucks, huts and small business start-ups, such as Chinese take-out and a few bars that lay scattered off-campus, for alternatives to meal plans. The Lunchies Insert will help foodies wade through the many choices by narrowing down the list of eateries to the most beneficial ones for taste buds.

The Global Issue examines Temple's impact on the world and the impact of the world on Temple. With students studying at campuses in Tokyo and Rome, Temple also has several study-abroad partnerships in England, Ireland, Costa Rica and more. This issue will illustrate students' experiences abroad and explore just how far the Temple name can go.

The Movers and Shakers Issue highlights Temple's faculty and staff members who are making a difference on campus. Among last year's profiled movers and shakers: Magid About-Gharbia, head of Temple's Center for Drug Discovery, and Lori Tharps, a published author and journalism professor.

The Weekender Insert will allow students to escape schoolwork and entertain the idea of taking day trips on a budget. Philadelphia is a short distance from other cities and is in a picturesque region. With access to bus and train systems, the insert will explore the getaway for a college student.

The Bar Guide Insert won't be encouraging students to drink up, but it will be a bar-hopping guide to the city's bar scene for students who choose to do so. From Center City to Northern Liberties to South Philly, bar signs begging passersby to have a drink are on every corner. This insert will cover which bars are worth stopping in at and which bars can be washed down with a nice cold brew and forgotten.

The Music Issue puts a pair of headphones on for readers by profiling bands and reviewing event venues around the city.

The Commencement Insert will be available at all graduations as well as newsstands. The insert will profile outstanding graduates and preview the road that lies ahead.
